

BRITAIN'S MEAT IMPORTS

The United Kingdom in the fiscal year 1914-15, imported meats having a total value of $211,000,000. Only eighty-one million of this came from British possessions. Out of this latter no less than sixteen millions was for frozen beef from Australia. It will be seen from this statement that England is to a large extent dependent for her meat supplies upon countries outside of the British Empire. The Argentine sent no less than $70,000,000 worth of chilled beef, frozen beef and canned beef. Canada contributed little outside of hams and bacon. Since the war broke out there have been continuous demands for meats of all kinds. Enormous supplies have been sent forward by the Argentine, Australia, New Zealand, the United States and Uruguay. Some fairly large orders have also been placed in Canada.

With a view to studying the situation on the spot and acquiring information for the direction of Canadian production, Mr. H. S. Arkell, assistant live stock commissioner for the Dominion, went to Europe and France early in the year, and on his return prepared a report which is among the most valuable and suggestive articles in the series of War Book 1916. This report is also contained in Pamphlet No. 19 of the live stock branch.

By the shutting off of the big Russian supply has made a big opening for Canadian eggs, which will continue as long as the war lasts. After the war Canada can hold her own trade if we pay special attention to quality and grading.

Through the opening of the Danish imports due largely to German purchasing in Denmark, Canada has been enabled to greatly increase her exports. The war demands have been great, and the British workman has been able to buy bacon more freely. Canada can hold this increased trade if we keep up the quality and carefully look to the method of curing. The outlook for the feeding of hogs is promising at the present time.

But we produce good beef in Canada, but the quantity of prime available for the British market is as yet quite limited. The home market and the United States appropriate all this. After an interesting fact, however, it has been found that France is still and continues to be a good market for our frozen beef, possibly also Italy.

This is but a brief reference to the chief points in Mr. Arkell's survey. It would seem that while the war lasts there will be an increasing demand for meats of all kinds. To eggs, poultry and dairy products, particularly cheese. After the war is over there will be some readjustment that cannot now be foreseen, but through the enormous destruction of live stock in Europe, and the tremendous drain that have been made upon the surplus products of the rest of the world, there must be an enhanced value in live stock of all kinds. There may be some uncertainty as to market conditions of grain, but not so for live stock and live stock products.

WHAT ARE YOU WORTH DEAD?

According to a scientific investigation made recently for Leslie's, the ingredients of a man are about as follows:

Pat enough for seven hags of soup to make a medium-sized gall-bladder to fill a shaker. Lime to white-wash a chicken coop. Phosphorus to make 25,000 matches. Magnesium enough for a dose of magnesia. Sodium to neutralize a pint and a half of water. Potassium to explode a toy cannon.

Sulphur enough to rid a dog of fleas. Albumenoids enough to make a case of eggs.

This collection of junk is worth about 98 cents, so that you see it is highly important to refer to your man as being chiefly worthless. It is really too bad that a man who is worth twenty to sixty thousand dollars to his family while he is living, isn't worth more than 98 cents when he is dead, unless he has had the foresight to provide for that day when his activities cease.

Infantile paralysis is assuming such alarming proportions in New York that all children have been forbidden to leave the state. St. Paul and Minneapolis are also severely affected.

TIDE OF WAR HAS TURNED IN FAVOR OF THE ALLIES

With the British Allies in the field, July 31.—At the close of two years of the war and of the first month of the British offensive, General Sir Douglas Haig, commander-in-chief of the group of British armies in France, in speaking of the situation, said that the tide of the war was in its initiative, with the allies on the offensive on all fronts, while England for the first time, was exerting something like a military power on land worthy of her numerous resources. "The tide has turned," he said. "There has been with the Allies from the first. It is only a question of time until we win a decisive victory which is the one sure way to bring peace in this, as in other wars. Until this victory is won it becomes a British soldier in France to think of peace."

Those who had the freedom of the battle lines for the past four weeks had glimpses of the youthful and scholarly features of Sir Douglas in a passing automobile, to dusty roads thick with moving transports, a tank, and again of his athletic figure alighting from his car at headquarters of one of the army commanders for a conference. But mostly his time is spent in a quiet room in a small chateau, which is his personal headquarters.

In the centre of this room, where he talked with the Associated Press correspondent today, was raised a map of the region of the offensive with every detail, roads, woods, villages, trenches, ridges and valleys, and all the contours revealed at a glance. The only other visible machinery of combat were little sheets of reports which come through the curtains of shell fire, giving the situation at intervals in every sector of the front.

"The problem of the first summer campaign, and the second for the allies," he said, "was to hold the Germans from forcing a decision with their ready number of men, guns and shells. Whether it was the ally's superiority and heroism of the French on the Marne, the dogged retirement of the little British expeditionary force from Mons, the stubborn resistance of the French and British to the German effort for the channel ports, the Russian retreat last summer, Belgium's or Serbia's surrender, Italy's stone-walling against Austria, offensive, or France's immortal defence of Verdun, the purpose had always been to gain time for preparations necessary to take the offensive away from the enemy."

It is mentioned the days of preparation in the fall of 1914, when the British had not battalions where they have divisions now, and fought with flesh and blood against superior gun fire. Since he took command of the army, which he had to train and form, his favorite word has been patience to his subordinates and a call.

"Our unpreparedness at the start of the war, due to its unexpectedness is no secret," he continued. "While France, which had a great national army and universal service, giving all her strength, we had to begin building from the bottom up. The majority of our best regular officers had been killed or wounded in the early fighting. With the remainder as a nucleus to drill and organize the volunteers, who were raw but had the spirit that quickens, we undertook to create an army of millions, which must be officered largely by men of no military experience, to teach the German who had forty years of preparation. We had to make uniforms before the men who had enlisted could be taken out of civilian clothes, to build plants for the manufacture of rifles before we could arm our recruits, and to build arms and ammunition plants before we had artillery."

Meanwhile we had to keep on stone-walling in France with such troops as we had ready against the prepared force, whose blows were the sturdiest in his efforts for a decision, owing to his realization that time was against him. Now the new army has had its first practical experience in attack on a large scale.

"When the navy held England safe from invasion, it was principle left these men—all volunteers—to fight on soil which is not their own. They realized the preparedness, discipline and organization of the enemy that stood for militarism, abhorrent to them."

Sir Douglas Haig referred to the character of the German army and the British army, as revealed by the fighting of the last four weeks.

"The British soldier, as thinking for himself, recognized the superior work without question, was led to believe that the offensive of our new army would not come by their kind of discipline, was thorough enough, could not be formidable. When we followed them in their first week, we were in their second knee, the shock of our success, was accordingly the greater to their minds. For the first time, German officers who were taken admitted that Germany was a beaten. One of them who was on his way to England and had glimpses of our resource camp in France, said that he had been told that the British had only a fringe of troops on the front line, and once our attack was repulsed they could go through to the coast and end the war."

Finally, he expending the situation.

Sir Douglas indulged in a Scottish phrase, "Facts are chills that winna ding," and continued "the third year of the war will be the Allies' year. No less than France, we shall give all the strength there is in us to drive the invader from here, and from Belgium."

England will not achieve her full strength on land, however, until next summer.

All those who believe that our cause is the cause of civilization, may rest assured that this army has no thought except to go on delivering blow after blow until we have won that victory by force of arms which will warrant a lasting peace."

SPRUCE TREE VILLAGE ITEMS (Pigeon Lake)

A very pleasant evening was spent on Wednesday of last week when the inmates of the Pioneer and Bide-wee camps held a shadow party. The program was as follows:

Song, "O Canada" by the villagers. Little Miss Mufti, by her baby. Old King Cole, by the Rascals. The Cake Walk by Charlie and Kate. "Before and after Marriage" by Limberlost and Jane. "Let's sing a Joll by Sir Guy and Jack. Song, "The Yee Yee" by Charlie. "Barber, Barber, shave a pig," by Spud and Kitty. Song, "Well, Never Let the Old Flag Fall" by the Villagers. Last but not least was the distribution of popcorn, amply provided by Kate and the mistress of the Bide-wee camp.

Orlo Robinson of Can't Fill 'Em Up camp presided as chairman and kept excellent order. The evening passed off very well with the exception of a few camp squalls (which are not always very strong), breaking down and letting their occupants rather ungraciously hit the ground.

We hope in the near future to have another party which will surprise the villagers. Although it is war time and in spite of the fact that there is a shortage of three dollars to camp there are as many campers as ever and a many more are expected out later.

We beg of all those who have their camp names prepared as our vocabulary is about exhausted. The different camps at present are Stand-away Camp, Liberty Hall, Bide-wee Camp, Pioneer Camp, Sky Pilot's Retreat, Jake a loo Camp, Idle Wilds Camp, Kari's Hill, and up Camp.

We miss from our midst this year Big Smoke and his squaws, Scout Rinsortier, Grey Duck, his wife and Prognostic. P. English, of Spruce Camp, Calgary, spent the week-end with his patients.

On August 2nd we welcomed back to our peaceful village (which is not so peaceful now as it once was) Spotted Tail and his family.

The weather, which has been very uncomfortable for campers has changed and we have from now on to have a splendid time.

The village store, which for the short time it was here was very convenient for the boys campers, is closed and we miss it very much. One could buy there canned goods, refreshments, hardware and tools.

Our friend Rat Sandin is with us once more as the guest at Bide-wee camp.

Miss Mildred Chandler is spending a week at the Pioneer camp.

The road to the lake is the best in the country, and the short new road around the lake is being dragged and fixed up, so that there will be no bad places all the way to the camps.

Sunday last being a fine day many people motored out from the city. The Jake a loo and Stand-away camps are breaking up this week.

FLIES

"Busy, curious, thirsty fly, Drink with me and eat as I."
—Wm. Oldys.

And to this might be added "Eat with me and eat as I," for on all occasions without invitation, when the opportunity offers, they are at the uninvited and unbidden pest and insist on sharing our food as well as our drink with us, even in shouting their most insistent evidence of their visit behind them.

When flies are spoken of in this country, we naturally have in mind the house fly, which is so prevalent that no one needs an introduction to the said pest, but while this is the commonest fly personally met with and with the one that will be most particularly dealt with in this article, still the common house fly is only one type among many of the fly species. The stable fly is a different type, and at one time this fly was greatly dreaded, but the disease of contagion in infantile paralysis, but this now has been largely discarded. Then also the Tsetse fly of Africa is now regarded as a fly carrier and inoculator in cases of the sleeping sickness that is of such a fatal character in that country.

But to return to the commonest pest, our common house fly, it is perhaps well that one should know and bear in mind its life history, as on this depends so much in respect to dealing with the destruction and reduction of the fly nuisance.

The house fly, or typhoid fly, as it has sometimes been called, is a most dangerous enemy of our race, on account of its disease and filthspreading habits, for not only carries the disease germs on its feet and body, but sucks them into itself, and the fly specks that we see where-ever flies abound are just the excrement or vomited matter deposited wherever the fly may happen to light, and that may be on your or the baby's food, and is especially dangerous as regards the latter, and no doubt, but the cause of the diarrhoea and possibly succeeding deaths from this disease in the infant.

The fly, diseased by the contact of the filth, disease-bearing fly with the baby's food, milk, toys, etc.

Flies will breed in almost any decaying organic matter; horse manure though, is their favorite breeding place, and it has been estimated that over 95 per cent of the flies at breed in stable manure. Here manure and manure from other animals will also be adopted by the fly, as filth to breed in. They also breed in the filth of closets, and this closet-bred fly is especially dangerous, for if disease germs—typhoid, diarrhoea, etc.—have previously been deposited there, the fly in maturing takes these germs up in its digestive apparatus and on its very first flight may release the contents of your table, and perhaps with fatal results to some one of the household. Stable manure, not containing human disease germs, is not primarily so deadly a breeding place, but the fly will be carried by lighting in places infected with germs, and when there, these manure previously outlined. They also breed in garbage and any fermenting vegetable matter, but as above outlined, the great breeding place is stable manure.

Each female fly lays 120 to 150 eggs at a time, and will start to lay about a week after she has fully matured, and may at short intervals lay three or four batches of such eggs. The eggs are white, and long-shaped, and anyone familiar with manure vats are familiar with them, although many may not have known that these minute, white flies, from these eggs, maggots are hatched, and this hatching process in warm weather takes about eight to ten hours. The maggots grow rapidly and become very active and may reach full size in five days, and when full grown they migrate to the sides and bottom of the manure heap and here take on the pupa stage, and it is from the chrysalis stage that they develop into full size flies. The average time for the development of the fly from the egg to the full fledged being about ten days, varying of course somewhat on the favorable condition of heat and moisture. Flies probably do not, as a rule, travel any great distance, and half a mile would probably be about the radius of their activities if food is plentiful, but by wind or boats or vehicles may be carried to a much greater distance. Flies breed all summer, so that many generations of a single fly come into existence in a single summer, and one fly will in this way produce in a season millions of others. A well-infected manure heap may contain 1,200 to 1,000 fly maggots per pound of manure, but not equally distributed, as in large piles maggots are mostly on the new parts and around the edges.
The fly species we see are of two kinds. The smaller darker ones are the excrement of the fly, and depending on the amount of food available, they are the voracious (vicious) fly, it is estimated, will make from 50 to 100 specks a day. The larger, lighter colored, are the house fly, both of these kinds of specks may contain living, virulent germs, as they deposited on anything that may come in contact with the mouth or hands, may be swallowed in the former case directly, and in the latter case by being carried on the hands, to something that ultimately reaches the mouth.

To control the fly nuisance, considered action is necessary. One person may destroy or otherwise dispose

NOTED MUSICIAN OF MONTREAL

Advices The Use of "FRUIT-A-LIVES", The Famous Fruit Medicine.

MR. ROSENBERG
599 Casgrain St., Montreal.

"In my opinion, no other medicine in the world is so curative for Constipation and Indigestion as 'Fruit-a-lives'.
I was a sufferer from these complaints for five years, and my medicinal operations, music, brought about a kind of Intestinal Paralysis with many Headaches, belching gas, drowsiness after eating, and Pain in the Back. I tried pills and medicines of physicians, but nothing helped me. Then I was induced to try 'Fruit-a-lives', and now for six months I have been entirely well.
I advise any one who suffers from this horrible trouble—Chronic Constipation with the resultant indigestion, to try 'Fruit-a-lives', and you will be agreedly surprised at the great benefit you will receive". A. ROSENBERG.

of his manure heap or other breeding material, but if his neighbor does not, the result is not at all satisfactory unless it is in country districts where the next house is far away; but in urban places, this is not the case, it is necessary that each one do his own part, and thoroughly. Of course every fly killed is a gain, but at the midsummer season when flies are at their highest point of development, it is doubtful if any great diminution of flies can be brought about by a campaign waged against adult flies by swatting or other such methods, and while such methods are not to be derided, they really do not get at the root of the matter.

The means which will produce the best effects are those which are directed against their breeding places and against the early stages of their life. In the early stages, fly traps and fly swatters help, but the use of poisonous fly papers on the whole should be avoided, on account of the possibility of poisoning children, and the sticky fly papers, where fly papers are used at all, should, on this account, be used with great care. There is still of the wholesale fly trap, made of wire on a large scale; just all of these methods, and the use of a matted way, are really only temporary unless we deal with the matter from the fountain-head.

The source of the greatest danger is the insanitary, unprotected closet.
As the fly maggot will burrow through a covering of dirt or ashes, the use of these as a covering for the contents of closets is not sufficient, and this is where a thoroughly made superstratum should be provided, that will be, as far as possible, thoroughly fly-proof and this will reduce the danger of fly contamination to the minimum, by keeping the fly originally out of the closets and so they cannot get in to breed or carry filth and germs.

Stable manure should be moved at least once a week, at least during the fly breeding season, and if taken to the outside ground and deposited in burning piles, will be effectively destroyed, or if manure is thoroughly broken up and scattered about the field, the egg maggots will be destroyed, and no large masses of material left for propagating places. If manure is in small amounts, and a difficulty arises about having it taken away, a bin, or box, or barrel with close fitting sides and top to prevent the escape of flies, should be used, and even here, when possible, the manure should be disposed of weekly, but it will be much less likely to breed flies, due to the extent of open manure heaps, although few may work their way through in the cracks or crevices.

Fly maggots, as above noted, tend to work to the sides and bottom of the manure heap, and this knowledge is useful in destroying the maggots in another way, for if the manure is placed on a platform and a ditch or pool of water provided underneath and around the sides, the maggots will work out of the manure and fall into the water and be destroyed.

It is not desirable to have the impression created from the above abbreviated account of the life history of the fly, that it is not probably the chief mode of infection, even where flies abound, but instead, contact infection has now been presented as the one great source of mode of infection. Still all prominent investigators agree that the fly is at the same time an important factor in the spread of many diseases such as typhoid, diarrhoea, tuberculosis, etc.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE HIGH COST OF BURNING

When a man has a fire, one of the first questions asked is "Was he insured?" If the answer was in the affirmative, we probably remark:
"That's good, the insurance companies can stand it," or something to that effect.

But, did it ever occur to you that the insurance companies do not pay the loss and could not remain in business if they did? They merely distribute the loss over a large number of people and make it easier to bear. Although insurance creates no new wealth, but merely changes the distribution of it, its economic value is inestimable. If a man's stock or factory is burned and he carries no insurance, the probability is that he will be utterly ruined and the most of years will be lost. But if each contributes a little to indemnify him for his loss, he is able to rebuild and remain in business with benefit to the community. The function of insurance therefore is to collect a little from each of us and to then pay it out to those who are unfortunate enough to have a fire.

Insurance is practically an indirect tax, the most odious form of taxation, because we pay without knowing it and consequently are more or less indifferent to it.

Consider those for instance, the many carry insurance on their buildings, machinery and stock and the cost of this is added to the price of the finished product, the leather, the shoe manufacturer, the wholesaler, and the retailer each does the same and when you buy a pair of shoes from the local dealer, the fire tax is included in the price, although it is not mentioned. So, unless we live in caves or the forest, like savages, we cannot avoid paying our share of the fire tax. It is woven in the cost of everything we eat, drink and wear.
Should we not therefore take a little interest in the matter? The fire tax, the reason for it and how it can be reduced?

Canada has the worst fire record of any civilized country. During the four years ending December 31, 1910 our losses, exclusive of forest fires, averaged $38,756,770, or over 43 per cent of population per annum, as compared with 33 cents in the leading European countries. To show you what this means, each year for the four years ending December 31, 1910, over 140 lives were lost in fire in Canada and this takes no account of the serious and in many cases permanent injuries.

Carefully compiled statistics show that 70 or 75 per cent of this is frivolous waste of life and property, and is due to carelessness, but it is not and is easily preventable. We are careless in our building construction; careless with heating apparatus, matches, candles, gasolene and many other things which are responsible for most of our fires.

Fires start through carelessness and spread on account of poor building construction. Wooden shingles are about the best construction apart from the inequality of man should do.

Urban municipalities can do a good deal towards reducing the fire waste by passing and enforcing laws for prevention and building legislation; but most of the responsibility for this disgraceful condition of affairs rests with the individual. We must learn to correct our careless habits and realize our public responsibilities.

In future articles we will try to show how by taking a little care we can greatly reduce the fire tax.

GOOD NEWS FOR FARMERS

Ottawa, July 27.—An order-in-council was passed today appropriating a considerable sum to sink test wells in Southern Alberta in expectation of securing artesian water to supply water in that district. For some time the geological department has been investigating the possibility for artesian wells in Southern Alberta, and has reported that there is every prospect of success in solving the water problems by this method. In hunting for oil north of Milk River, an immense supply of water was struck at 800 feet. The area to be prospected will be from the international boundary north for about hundred miles.

HOW APPENDICITIS

CAN BE PREVENTED Wetaskiwin people should know that a few doses of simple buckthorn bark glycerine, etc., as mixed in Alcohol, can, often relieve or prevent appendicitis. This simple mixture removes such irritating food matter that ONCE SUFFICIENTLY relieved almost any CASE of constipation, sour stomach or gas. A short treatment helps chronic stomach troubles. Administer it eaten and most thorough action of anything ever sold. T. B. Fall, druggist.

HARVEST LABOR

A rate of one cent per mile for harvesters from boundary points, with distributing points for Alberta at Edmonton, Calgary and Lethbridge, was the decision arrived at at the conference of railway officials and representatives of the government of the prairie provinces in Ottawa, on July 27. The meeting was attended by R. J. Daly, of the prairie provinces' public department. This is the first year for the recognition of Lethbridge as a centre for this distribution of harvest labor from the United States. It was stated at the conference that the soldiers will be available for the work of helping out the farmers from August 1. The date when the rate will come into effect will be announced later. At the conference arrangements were also made for securing labor from the east. The rate will be the same as last year, $13.00 from Ontario to Winnipeg, and then a cent a mile west from that point.

Ottawa, July 29.—Canadian troops at the front are now all equipped with the improved rifle, which is to be used by the Canadian army.
The same is not yet true of the troops in England. The statement issued by the government some weeks ago was to the effect that the first division had been furnished with the new arm.

GOT DIARRHOEA FROM DRINKING BAD WATER.

People moving from one place to another are very subject to diarrhoea on account of the change of water, change of climate, change of diet, etc., and what at first appears to be but a slight loosening of the bowels should never be neglected or some serious bowel complaint will be sure to follow.

The safest and quickest cure for diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cholera, cholera morbus, cholera infantum, pains in the stomach and all looseness of the bowels is Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry.

Mr. Ernest Jeffery, Moon's Jaw, Sask., writes: "A few years ago, when I first came out to Canada, I went to the furthest field to work. Somehow or other the water did not agree with me. I had the diarrhoea so bad that blood was coming from me, and I thought my last days had come. One of the harvest hands advised me to take Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and before I had used the bottle I was able to go to work again. My advice to all is always keep a bottle of this wonderful diarrhoea cure on hand."

"Dr. Fowler's" has been on the market for the past seventy years, and has been used in thousands of Canadian homes during that time, and we have yet to hear of a case of bowel complaint where it has not given perfect satisfaction.

The genuine "Dr. Fowler's" is manufactured only by Dr. T. M. Fowler Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

TWO HUNDRED PERISH IN TERRIBLE FOREST FIRES

Englehart, Ont., July 30.—Forest fires that have for some days threatened the northernmost towns and the outlying districts of Northern Ontario yesterday and today culminated in a holocaust which wiped out entire communities, licked the fringe of large towns and leveled a death toll which cannot at present be accurately computed, but which will be well over 500 lives. Scores of persons are suffering from injuries and many of them are likely to succumb.

In addition to the known and there are many outlying places that will materially swell the list of victims when the rescue parties return. It is feared that at Tumbona and Kowalew many prospectors have been trapped.

Nashua suffered worst. It consisted of a score of frame dwellings and stores and had been threatened for some time. It was practically surrounded, walls of fire cutting off all escape to the north and south, and with no river or lake at hand, the inhabitants were doomed.

Cochran was entirely burned, with the exception of Second and Third avenues. The proximity of the "lakeside" and Northern Ontario track and the lake saved most of the inhabitants.

Ramora, a small settlement, was completely wiped out. Nathansen was totally destroyed with the exception of two houses, and 34 bodies are laid out on the station platform.

South Porcupine suffered only the loss of the sawmill and the station. At Timmins the flames were checked on the outskirts of the town after licking up seventeen houses.

At Ironquills Falls nothing remains but part of the paper mills and the railway station. The list of victims is likely to be largely increased from among the outlying settlements. One settler and 10 children perished while his wife was absent to seek aid.

Refugees, destitute of food and clothing, are pouring into the towns to the south of the burned districts. A large number have arrived here and are being distributed to New Liskeard, Cobalt, and Haliburton. Citizens of the town worked all last night to feed and clothe the victims prior to distribution.

HOT WEATHER RULES FOR THE HORSE

1. Load lightly and drive slowly.
2. Stop in the shade if possible.
3. Water your horse as often as possible. So long as a horse is working, water in small quantities will not hurt him. But let him only drink a few swallows if he is going out at night. Do not fail to water him at stand still after he has eaten his hay.
4. When he comes in after work, sponge off the harness marks and let him cool. Wash his face but not his legs.
5. If the thermometer is 75 degrees or higher, wipe him all over with a damp sponge, using vinegar water if possible. Do not wash the horse at night.
6. Saturday night give a bran mash, lukewarm, and add a tablespoonful of saltpetre.
7. Do not use a horse-hat, unless it is a canopy top like that. The ordinary bell-shaped hat does more harm than good.
8. A sponge on top of the head, or even a cloth is good if kept wet. If dry it is better than nothing.
9. If the horse is overcome with heat, get him into the shade, remove harness and bridle, wash out his mouth, sponge him all over, shower his legs, and give him two ounces of ammonia, or two ounces of sweet spirits of nitre, in a pint of water, or give him a pint of coffee warm. Cool his head at once, using cold water or if necessary, chopped ice, wrapped in a cloth.
10. If the horse is off his feed, try him with two quarts of oats mixed with bran, and a little salt or sugar. Or give him oatmeal gruel or barley water to drink.
11. Watch your horse. If he stops sweating suddenly, or if he breathes short and quick, if his ears droop, or if he stands with his legs braced sideways, he is in danger of a heat or sun stroke and needs attention at once.
12. If it is so hot that the horse events in his stable, and he lies outside, with bedding under him. Unless he cools off during the night he cannot well stand the next day's work.

These rules are prepared by the Boston Work-Horse Relief Association, whose office is at 15 Beacon St. Boston.

TWENTY-FIVE MILLION LOSS BY EXPLOSION

NEW YORK, July 30.—Property loss estimated at $25,000,000 was caused early today by a series of terrific explosions of ammunition awaiting shipment to the entente allies, and stored on Black Tom island, a small strip of land jutting into New York Bay off Jersey city.

The loss of life was not determined definitely until there has been opportunity to check up the workmen employed on the island and on boats moored nearby. Three are known to be dead, and at least five more are missing. Scores of persons are injured, some of them probably fatally.

The detonations, which were felt in five states, began with a continuous rapid fire of small shells, then the blowing up of great quantities of dynamite and other explosives, followed by the heaving of thousands of shrapnel shells, which literally covered the surrounding country and waters for miles around.

Fire that started soon after the first great crash destroyed the warehouse of the National Storage Company, on Black Tom island, in which were stored merchandise valued at between twelve and fifteen million dollars.

Atkins, July 29.—It is learned in semi-official Greek circles that the Turkish government is holding up the distribution of supplies intended for the relief of the Armenians. The condition of the Armenian refugees is said to be most pitiable. The total number of civilians massacred up to this date is put at 800,000, according to estimates made here.

Letter From The Front

The following very interesting letters were recently received from Freeman Kelley who has been doing his bit in Belgium for some time:

Belgium, June 25, 1916.

How are you enjoying summer in Canada? It is very fine here, but in a good many ways I prefer this season in Belgium to what we are having here.

We are still on working parties, going out every evening, and returning in the wee small hours of the morning. Nothing very exciting has happened, although Fritz has come quite close at times with some shrapnel and a few stray bullets of machine guns and rifles. The first night I was out on water fatigue, and just before we got into the trenches Fritz dropped a few shrapnel shells and quite a number of high explosives. We didn't waste a minute in getting into safety in the dugouts. There was room for only six of us in the one we chose, and as there were eight of us, two were somewhat out of luck. The officer in charge and myself happened to be the ones, and I had just put down my water jar when it was smacked to bits by a piece of shrapnel. From that time on we hugged the parapet of the trench for dear life until the storm was over. It only lasted about twenty minutes and then all was quiet again.

We have had only two casualties (very slight wounds) in the last four days, so you can imagine how quiet things are at present.

Fritz generally has quite a stringing-out on Sunday but he has evidently made an exception of today, as there is very little artillery fire. Our anti-aircraft guns are pounding away at the Boche machines, and a few Boches are doing the same to us.

We saw quite an air-fight the other day. Two German machines and a Belgian had quite a little affair about five hundred feet up, and it was without exception the most exciting thing I ever saw. There were three British machines at some distance, but they didn't arrive on the scene until the fight was over.

I saw Edgar the other day; he is the same old Edgar as ever, and he sends his regards to all.

Belgium, July 2, 1916.

Today is Sunday, and as we have no work to do and have just returned from "bath parade" there seems to be a certain feeling of well-being and indolence among the troops, probably owing to the unusual feeling of cleanliness.

We are back in our rest camp after having done our shift in the trenches. We had a comparatively quiet time, with very few casualties. We went out on working parties every night, and our second last night in a row Fritz's attempts at a bombardment. This was the first time for a while and Rennie Barnes, Victor and myself were all hit by flying pieces of shrapnel. Luckily none of them were coming very fast. Victor and Rennie got theirs on their steel helmets and mine getting me on the side of the neck. I have the piece which hit me. It is the first one I have had since that close, so I'm going to hang on to it. I haven't had a letter from any of you since, leaving our billets, but had a letter from Mrs. Golden, asking me to take part of my leave in Ireland. I'm afraid it will be some time before I have my leave as we have to be six months over here before we get one. The fact that I didn't get one while in the land will not, I think, enable me to get one any sooner.

I was telling you, I think, about seeing Edgar. He came down here last night from headquarters, and we went for a walk and had a pleasant talk about old times.

I am afraid this letter is proving to be a finale as far as an interesting account is concerned, but it seems to be the best I can do today. The following poem was found on a fragment of paper in the trench. (Enclosed) signed by "W.G.B."

The fragrant birds are winging On home quest here and there, The fragrant flowers are springing,
And scenting sweet the air;
Though leafy homes are riven,
The warblers linger on,
Unfaded flowers have thriven, Though friends who cared have gone
All life and hope departed,
This city shelled and shattered, Was once a splendid home;
Today a people scattered, In homes that linger on, Scarce stone to stone united,
Where once they used to dwell, Still homes and hearts were bright, All day and night they dwell.

Where are the busy people, Who thronged the busy mart?
The warblers linger on,
And sculptured works of art;
Where war's rude hand has darted, Grim desolation reigns,
All life and hope departed,
And naught but death remains.

Save where the birds are hoping They have laid sleeping slumber, And flowers through rubbish groping Triumphantly upward spring; May these forgetful story, But where all is peace and joy,
And love in their hearts is stirred;
And the ones who fell were true
To the end and their loved ones still can brag,
That their boys were born in Canada,
Beneath the British flag.

Pety was gazing with dreamy eyes into the fire. "Ah, my darling," he murmured, "what matters it that sorrow and trouble must of necessity be lurking in the unknown future? While I am with you I think of naught but the present—the superbly beautiful present." So do I, my dearest," said Annette. "But I'll take me with you when you buy it, won't you? Men have such queer tastes in rings."

The Army Medical Corps have opened an office in the Borden Thompson Block, Edmonton, for recruiting purposes. The corps is urgently in need of men to take the place of drafts that have recently gone to the front, and for a Field Ambulance that is expected to be sent in the near future. All recruits are furnished transportation from home point or from Edmonton to the Training Depot at Suffern Camp, Calgary, upon their acceptance by either their home doctor or one of the Corps officers.

CANADA

(Written after the battle of June 2 to 4, 1916, by Pte. Robert White, 2nd. Universities Company, P.C.C.L.I.)

Oh, Canada, our home we love so well; How hard it is to leave thy shore No tongue can ever tell.
But when our mother country called For men to come and fight, For honor, truth and righteousness,
For liberty and right,
Against a mighty tyrant whose ambition was to rule
The world and all within it with law Both harsh and cruel.
Then, though the ties were hard to break That bound us to our home And though our loved ones' tears fell fast At the thought of a far-off home, We saw that we were wanted
And we could not ever lagged, For we were born in Canada,
Beneath the British flag.

And now that we have been here Through many a weary spell, In the battered trenches at Ypres, That have been like the mouth of hell, Though the trenches were blown to pieces And the ground was strewn with dead, By the awful prolonged bombardment By thousands of tons of lead, As they tried the third time to take Ypres, That awful city of blood, They found that some men from Canada, Between them and the city stood.

So not a Hun could get therein,
And many of them did try, Only to fall or turn and run as they Saw the foremost die,
So we barred the way to the tyrant And still we can brag That we were born in Canada,
Beneath the British flag.

And though there is many a lonely heart,
And some that are almost breaking, Among mothers, sisters, sweethearts And wives, whose loved ones they Lives are staking, Yet the women of Canada have heart That are brave, and not only brave But loyal.

And they would never hinder
The men who are the Kaiser's enemies to fight; But they pray to God to comfort those Whose loved ones have not yet Returned home,
They fought in the glorious cause Of right and suddenly heard the call.

To a brighter world above, where No crash of war is heard,
And love in their hearts is stirred;
And the ones who fell were true
To the end and their loved ones still can brag,
That their boys were born in Canada,
Beneath the British flag.

So if there are any men who are left On Canada's fair green shore, Who have nothing to keep them from Coming to fight, out here where The runs do roar,
Just think what would happen If many like you were to stay just Where you are,
Where you can have a good time at home, or go for a spin in your car, Or to a party and sing with the girls, "My Country, 'tis of Thee."

But won't come out and fight like a man For our land of liberty, Back up my man and think of those Who are out here fighting for you, And come out and do your bit For yourself and for your country too.
So that when the war is over You can hold up your head and brag, That you fought for your King and country and for the British flag.

General News

The Camrose Constituency Motor Club picnic at Dried Meat Lake has been postponed to Friday, August 11.

Hunters will pay more to their ammunition this fall. The prospects are that the advance will increase steadily.

In a letter just received at Washington from a high official of the British government, it is set forth that whatever comment the Germans make concerning the present Allied drive on the western front, it is only a temporary push. The real drive, it is said, will not come before April or May, 1917.

A deadlock exists between coal operators and miners in Alberta and across West Pass over the recent refusal of the operators to grant a 10 per cent increase and the failure of the miners to accept the alternative proposal of 5 and 7 1/2 per cent. The miners are out in some places, although the present agreement has several months to run.

Peace River, July 31.—Oil in considerable quantities was struck at the J. D. McArthur well, 14 miles south of this place, on the Peace river, on Friday, at a depth of 88 feet. The oil is heavy and is pronounced by oil men to be of a good quality. Drilling has been suspended pending the capping of the well, but is to be resumed immediately. Considerable excitement is manifest in town. In addition to many claims filed before the closing of the land office yesterday noon, there are now in the line waiting their turn on Monday morning over 80 prospective oil magnates.

WETASKIWIN CONSTITUENCY TO DO ITS DUTY FOR THE PATRIOTIC FUND

The following communication has been issued by the local officers of the Patriotic Fund:

"Since your subscription was received last fall, the demands on the Canadian Patriotic Fund have steadily grown and will no doubt continue to increase. The probabilities are that the war will continue yet for an indefinite period and if Canada is going to furnish 500,000 men for the armies of the Allies, a great deal of money will yet be required for the support of the wives and children of the soldiers.

A large amount of money was subscribed last fall and a considerable amount has been paid in but this district is still short in the amount we agreed to furnish to the Fund and the committee would ask that you make a special effort to pay the balance of your subscription within the next two months so that this constituency may be able to make as good a showing as possible.

The money is needed now and the committee will take it as a favor subscribers and others will pay a generously on payment of the next few weeks. Alberta is doing its share of fighting and it should do its share of paying as well.

The officers of the North Alberta branch are anxious to have all subscriptions paid before August 1, or September 1, at the latest. Sympathies should be paid to the treasurer of the local organization, Mr. B. Clarke, of the Merchants Bank of Canada, Wetaskiwin.

(Sgd) H. J. Montgomery, President,
O. H. Russell,
Secretary.

HOW CHURCH UNION IS VIEWED

The Montreal Gazette's correspondent in London writes: "Military events have eclipsed the news from Canada in regard to church union, but the decision of the Presbyterian general assembly has created great interest here. The Daily Chronicle welcomes the Canadian union of sects as a hopeful admission of co-operation and shortcomings in the existing order of things, and says that the Christianity which is to help unite the world together after the victory of the war, must be different from what men have known it in the past. There is the pathos of history about the stand of the minority, the Chronicle says, but practical sense in the decision of the majority, and it is significant that the latter are supported by returned soldiers.

"The lord mayor recently made a strong appeal for fusion of creeds here, but clerical opposition is very strong even against a union of the various divisions of the Methodist."

The judge looked over at the prisoner and said: "You are privileged to challenge any member of the jury now impeached. Hogan brightened. 'Well, then, yer Honor, c'll I fight the shabby man wid me eye, in the corner there forrest yer'."
